The TIMES, January 6, 1893, in a review of Capt. Mahan's new work, says:—'Capt. Mahan, if not the founder, is at any rate the most eminent living expositor of what may be called the philosophy of naval history. No historian and no writer on naval warfare has displayed so profound a grasp of the true meaning of sea power as a determining factor of human affairs. For the first time, so far as we are aware, in historical literature, he has shown us the true significance of the naval history of Great Britain. . . . Of the way in which this great theme is treated we need say little; no living writer is so well qualified to do it justice as Captain Mahan, and certainly the true significance of the tremendous events of these momentous years has never been more luminously or more instructively displayed.'
